

ABSTRACT

A control system for monitoring the performance of one or more spray nozzles measures variables such as total liquid flow rate and liquid pressure of spray being delivered to the spray nozzles and provides a sensing signal when the difference, at a given liquid pressure, between a calculated liquid flow rate and an actual liquid flow rate exceeds an error.